

THE TRAIL OF PAINTED PONIES

Old Fashioned Christmas

Artist: Andre' G. DeBrekht

Using the exquisite artistic techniques synonymous with Old World art, André DeBrekht recreates a time-honored scene that never grows old. It's Christmas Eve, and every little one sleeps with one eye on the sky – watching for Santa in this sleigh to land on the rooftop and slide down the chimney with wondrous gifts! Cookies and milk are set upon the hearth, and the aroma of evergreens fills the air. Through the night, Santa and his reindeer soar from rooftop to rooftop... leaving no one beyond his magical reach. This breathtaking scene evokes memories of Christmases past – and those yet to come. As classic as yesteryear... as new as today.

Santa's reindeer are well known, however, very few people know about "Santa's Stallion!" When the winter wind's blow and the holidays are in the air, Santa calls on his elves to saddle his stunning, white stallion. Together, they travel through the snowy night, delivering gifts to all of the cowboys and cowgirls around the world! Everyone who loves horses receives a special holiday gift, hand-delivered by Santa and his spectacular stallion. Ho, ho, hold your horses!

Bells 'n' Elves

Bells 'n' Elves

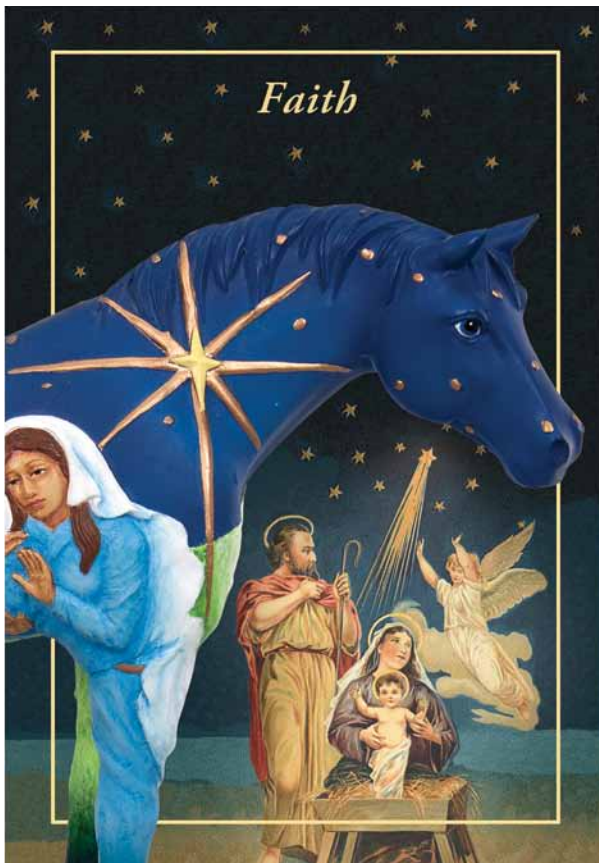

Artist: Lorna Matsuda

This whimsical Painted Pony's name is ELF, and he is Santa's secret helper. His job is to keep an eye on all the girls and boys, checking if they have been naughty or nice, and putting them on Santa's list. There are times when ELF tends to be mischievous, however, sneaking away from his duties to run and play with the reindeer at the North Pole. Santa has put jingle bells on his outfit so he can keep track of his little ELF Pony.

Faith

Faith

Artist: Leslie Gates

In the Biblical telling of the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ, angels proclaimed to the shepherds in nearby fields watching over their flocks that a King was born, and they should follow the "Star of Bethlehem" shining brightly in the east to the stable where the newborn child lay in a manger.
